THE 1977 VIRGINIA OUTDOOR RECREATION SURVEY

by

Gerald D. Spittle, Gregory J. Buhyoff

John R. Davy, Jr., and Robert L. McElwee^{1/}

INTRODUCTION

The Virginia Commission of Outdoor Recreation coordinated through the Planning District Commissions an inventory of statewide recreation resources between April, 1977 and September, 1977. The School of Forestry and Wildlife Resources, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, transferred the data into a computerized retrieval system from which this summary booklet was derived.

This inventory is an integral part of the Virginia Outdoors Plan Information System. Its primary purpose is to provide information enabling the Commission to formulate and write the statewide comprehensive outdoor recreation plan. It is also envisaged that this data be used for other planning activities, such as those conducted by federal and state agencies or the 22 Planning District Commissions in Virginia, as well as for various research activities, special studies, and teaching.

The purpose of this publication is threefold. The first is to encourage further use of the data it contains by informing the public of the specific type of information available. The second is to present a comprehensive set of data which can be used to answer general inquiries about the nature and distribution of recreation resources in the Commonwealth of Virginia. Finally, it is to advise that this data is available in other forms which may better suit individual needs but which would be too numerous to publish in this bulletin.

INVENTORY METHODOLOGY

The 1977 statewide recreation resources were inventoried by methods different from that utilized in the 1972 study. Although the physical features that were measured and counted are similiar, the data collection and analysis methods were elaborated in order to reduce the number of steps involved in actually computing the inventory.

^{1/} Gerald D. Spittle is computer programmer, Gregory J. Buhyoff is Assistant Professor of Forestry and Robert L. McElwee is Extension Specialist in Forestry and Outdoor Recreation, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg, VA, 24061. John R. Davy, Jr., is Chief of Planning, Virginia Commission of Outdoor Recreation, Richmond, VA, 23219.

A major objective of the 1977 inventory procedure was to eliminate the coding and keypunching steps which could be sources of error. Specifically, the steps involved in the current methodology were:

1. A mark-sense form (Appendix I) was designed at the School of Forestry and Wildlife Resources. This permitted each person conducting the actual inventory (i.e., planning region and site personnel) to record the type and quantity of site recreation resources by blackening appropriate numerals on the mark-sense form.
2. These forms were sent by the Commission of Outdoor Recreation to each location used in the 1972 inventory as well as new locations established since 1972.
3. The Commission of Outdoor Recreation Office checked the returned mark-sense forms and made obvious corrections on incomplete or erroneously filled-out forms.
4. All complete mark-sense forms were turned over to the School of Forestry and Wildlife Resources for data storage and analysis. The mark-sense forms were read by an optical scanner and the data was put directly onto magnetic tape. The coding and keypunching steps were, therefore, bypassed. Programs were written, debugged, and then used to process and compile the inventory data. Analysis was complete in November, 1977.

The accuracy of this inventory information is as good as the information provided from the field sources since all of the other human error-links were eliminated between the data source and computer output.

DATA FORMAT AND AVAILABILITY

Data summaries are available in several standard formats for public use IN THE OFFICE at both the Commission of Outdoor Recreation and the Department of Forestry and Forest Products.

The standard summaries are:

1. Recreation Unit List - A list of all variables for each recreation unit in numerical sequence by designator number within agency, within locality, within Planning District, within Recreation Planning Region. (See following discussion for definitions).

2. Locality Summary - A summary for each of 135 localities of all variables beginning with "Total Acreage." The summary contains a sub-total for each agency within the locality and the total for the locality.
3. Recreation Region and Planning District Summary - A summary for each of the 11 Recreation Planning Regions of all variables. Data within Recreation Planning Region are sub-totaled by each agency and by federal, state, local, and private ownership for each Planning District. In addition, Recreation Planning Region sub-totals for these ownership classes and a regional grand total are presented.

The list and summaries are unlabeled and require an acetate overlay to interpret them. Further, sub-totals and the totals for some variables are unavailable because of overflow in the format statements. In this case the user may calculate the desired totals from the Recreation Unit List.

In addition, computer runs for special summaries or data extraction can be made at cost, depending on programmer availability.

All requests for standard summaries or special runs or questions concerning the data should be directed to:

DESCRIPTION OF THE DATA

A recreational unit is defined by the Commission of Outdoor Recreation as an area with outdoor recreational value that is administered by a class of/or particular agency; is within the boundaries of one political jurisdiction (city or county); and is distinct from other such areas. To have recreational value an area must have, in the judgment of the person making the inventory, the capability of offering opportunity for outdoor recreation activity but need not be doing so now. Recreation areas crossing political boundaries are sub-divided into components contained within such boundaries. These components then become the recreation unit which is inventoried. For example, a regional park which lies in three counties would be inventoried as three separate recreation units. The essence of this definition is that a recreation unit must offer current or potential recreational opportunities, be readily identifiable on the ground, and be contained within a local political jurisdiction.

Geographical Variables

Each recreation unit is identified by several geographical sub-divisions. In ascending hierarchial order these are:

1. Locality - The locality is one of the 95 counties or 42 independent cities in the State of Virginia.
2. Planning Districts - Planning Districts are multi-county and/or independent city areas created by the Virginia State Legislature to ". . . prepare a comprehensive plan for the guidance of the development of the district . . . (including) all elements which are of importance in more than one of the governmental subdivisions within the district, . . ." (Virginia Code, 1950) (Figure 1).
3. Recreation Planning Region - The Commission has divided the state into 11 recreation planning regions. Each of these regions entirely contains one or more Planning Districts.

Categorical Variables

Each recreation unit has five categorical variables in addition to the name of the unit and the geographical variables. These variables, which are further defined in appendix III, are:

1. Agency - Identifies the type of and in some cases the specific agency which administers the recreation unit.
2. Level of Responsibility - Identifies the category or level of government which administers the recreation unit.
3. Dominant Land Class - Indicates the dominant recreation appeal of the unit.
4. Primary Feature or Use - The primary physiographic feature or use which attracts users to the unit.
5. Use Type - Essentially, shows whether or not the unit is available to the general public.

Tables 1 and 2, which follow, summarize the data by those categories felt most generally useful. The three appendices following the tables contain lists and definitions of the localities, the categorical variables, and the variables inventoried at each recreation unit. These appendices will be useful in interpreting the data in tables 1 and 2.

RECREATION PLANNING REGIONS, PLANNING DISTRICTS, AND COUNTIES.

(Recreation Planning Regions are indicated by the heaviest lines and circled numerals. The lighter lines and uncircled numerals indicate Planning Districts.)
